NEW DEAN OF LAW SCHOOL

Indiana University Trustees Elect
Enoch G. Hogate.

Indianapolis, July 20.—Enoch G. Hogate has been elected dean of the law school at Indiana University to succeed George L. Reinhard, who died at Bloomington last week. This is a promotion for Hogate, who was second man in the law school faculty. The place thus made vacant will be filled by Judge Woodfin D. Robinson of the appellate court of Indiana, whose term expires this year. These changes were decided upon at a meeting of the university trustees held in this city.

Memorial resolutions on the death of Dean Reinhard were adopted by the trustees and they were spread on the record.

Enoch G. Hogate, who succeeds to the deanship of the Indiana law school, is widely known among the lawyers of the state. He has been a teacher at Bloomington for several years. He practiced law at Danville for a number of years, during which he served two terms in the legislature. He was graduated from Allegheny college.
