Greetings from Bloomington

The spring semester is well under way, with a full schedule of classes, clinics, lectures, and visits from distinguished alumni and friends. Heading the list: our weekly Career Choices series, featuring practitioners from all over the globe to share their experiences with students in the first-year legal profession course.

Now in its fourth year, this innovative course introduces students not only to the ethical responsibilities of our profession, but also to the many career options that a law degree presents. We believe that this mandatory course is the only one of its kind in the country.

Whether serving on a Career Choices panel, judging Moot Court, mentoring students, or just stopping by to catch up, you are always welcome at the Law School. The expertise and advice of our alumni are more important than ever in today's dynamic market for legal services. If you'd like to participate, please contact me.

Lauren Robel is settling in at her new position as Interim Provost and Executive Vice President of IU Bloomington. The article nearby will update you on her reflections so far.

Meanwhile, our faculty continue to perform groundbreaking research, making an impact in the courts, business, and legal education. Their work helps keep the Maurer School of Law on the forefront of change in an ever-changing profession.

Warm regards,
Hannah Buxbaum
