Basic Mediation and Restorative Justice training

Thursdays and Saturdays from Sept. 8-Oct. 10 on Zoom

The Community Justice and Mediation Center (CJAM) offers a 40-hour training program for those interested in conflict resolution, mediation, and restorative justice. Participants will enhance their interpersonal skills in communication and listening, problem solving, and negotiation, and they will increase their understanding of restorative justice philosophy and methods, sources of conflict, and processes leading to constructive conflict resolution. The training, led by senior mediators and restorative justice practitioners, provides the skills to work as a community mediator and restorative justice practitioner and qualifies participants to volunteer in CJAM's programs.

This fall, the five-week training will take place via Zoom on Thursday evenings, from 7 to 9 p.m., and Saturdays, 8:30 a.m. to 3 p.m., from September 8 through October 10. Tuition is $300 ($275 if received by August 28, 2022). Learn more about the training and register. You may also apply for a scholarship.

For questions or for more information, please e-mail training@jamcenter.org.

Faculty news

Prof. Leandra Lederman recently accepted an offer from Florida State University Law Review to publish her article now titled "Avoiding Scandals Through Tax Rulings Transparency," which is the first of a two-part project. In February, she presented it in Oregon Law School's Tax Policy Colloquium hosted by Roberta Mann. Lederman also was recently a guest on the Talking Legal Ed podcast, hosted by Linda Jellum, Billie Jo Kaufman, and David T. Ritchie (Mercer Law School). She discussed pedagogy and using videos on her YouTube channel, Break Into Tax, to help teach students. The episode is available here.
