6-14-1916

Judge Hogate Receives Letter from Prisoner

Follow this and additional works at: http://www.repository.law.indiana.edu/enoch
Part of the Legal Biography Commons, and the Military History Commons

Recommended Citation
http://www.repository.law.indiana.edu/enoch/5

This Writing about Dean Enoch Hogate is brought to you for free and open access by the Law School Deans at Digital Repository @ Maurer Law. It has been accepted for inclusion in Enoch George Hogate (1906-1918; 1918-1924 Dean Emeritus) by an authorized administrator of Digital Repository @ Maurer Law. For more information, please contact wattrn@indiana.edu.
No Money From Students.

Although reports from the Bursar's office show that the fund for the relief of the student soldiers, who are now in the country of the Big Grizzly, is gradually increasing, the increase is from the alumni, townspeople and instructors, who are not contributing to this fund. In fact, many students do not know that such a fund is available.

We believe that, if the receivers of the reports in the above-mentioned class would give us an explicit short statement in definite form, they would contribute. Past experience shows that it is a much better plan to which to raise money for worthy purposes than to make an extensive canvass of the students. It may often be done by a few well-selected funds at the various buildings. Although, if we are to give money from students, we believe that it would be a wise plan to use a few hundred dollars in two or three days in this manner. At any rate, we believe that the students are not far from the idea of raising the funds in the manner of aid of Indiana's old soldiers.

Early Indiana.

The writer of this has for some time thought that the University should be collecting information, as specified times given by the oldest members of the faculty on the earliest days of Indiana. We believe that it is a great and learned men who are so closely connected with Indiana's first days, that this matter can not only be fastened when its students come to a full appreciation of the early days upon which the structure rests.

The roster of Indiana's faculty and looking at the names of the early professors who directed the course of the University over the thick and thin and thick and shallow, is like passing through the corridors of the Hall of Fame. The tales of the men are the most varied romances, and when they are told by men who know them and appreciate them, then we can not fail to get an increasing live in the minds of the student of the land.

It was the pleasure of a small group of men Dr. D'nrfl held the stories of Daniel Kirkwood and of the Shoemaker Philosopher last winter. Every student who heard the same stories and all should hear the stories of many other of our own dear old professors. We have heard about Indiana's Shoemaker Philosopher whose fame spread far and wide in Bloomington and who, Kirkwood, who was one of the greatest of the world's oriental students, and who are hardly known more than by name by the present-day student.

There is nothing more that we believe has been especially available in keeping entertainment and amusement for the community. But this is the last in the series and we are desiring to serve them in some way. Our suggestions are not many for young women, because they are eagerly taken and eagerly accepted and a large number are of the most difficult and difficult nature. A large number are of the most difficult and difficult nature. A large number are of the most difficult and difficult nature. A large number are of the most difficult and difficult nature. A large number are of the most difficult and difficult nature. A large number are of the most difficult and difficult nature. A large number are of the most difficult and difficult nature. A large number are of the most difficult and difficult nature. A large number are of the most difficult and difficult nature. A large number are of the most difficult and difficult nature. A large number are of the most difficult and difficult nature. A large number are of the most difficult and difficult nature. A large number are of the most difficult and difficult nature. A large number are of the most difficult and difficult nature. A large number are of the most difficult and difficult nature.