"TREMENDOUS ALUMNI, FACULTY"
New dean on law school strengths

WE REMEMBER
Fromm, Bradley honored by colleagues and friends

The next chapter begins
HISTORY OF INNOVATION CONTINUES WITH APPOINTMENT OF DEAN AUSTEN L. PARRISH
DEAR ALUMNI AND FRIENDS:

I was honored to have been selected as your dean, and I am excited about the future of this great school. Following in the footsteps of Lauren Robel and Hannah Buxbaum is a formidable task indeed, and the warm welcome I have received during my short time on the job has been tremendous. The Maurer School of Law has so many strengths and it’s a privilege to be in a position to lead the Indiana Law community.

Later this year, we will begin the strategic planning process to chart a course for our future and to develop initiatives to ensure our long-range success. In the meantime, we need to tackle two high priorities: admissions and career placement. As the pool of law school applicants declines, continuing to find ways to attract the very best and brightest students is imperative. And although the picture for law graduates is improving, we must double our efforts to help prepare them for the future and to help them find careers for which they are best suited. Integrating career development and advising throughout the law school experience is key to this goal.

During the next few months, I will be working closely with our assistant deans of admissions and career placement on detailed plans for building a strong pipeline of incoming students and further developing a network of alumni and friends to help our students with their professional futures.

And that’s where all of you come in. Your on-the-ground assistance—as role models, as mentors, as advisers—is more crucial than ever in today’s competitive market. Many of you do so much for the School already. I hope that I can continue to call on you for your guidance and to help our students build the bridge between law school and the legal profession.

I look forward to meeting you soon. Our graduates are some of the most talented leaders in law, business and public service in the nation. I welcome your counsel as we work together to continue the momentum and to build on the Maurer School of Law’s past success.

SINCERELY,

AUSTEN L. PARRISH
DEAN AND JAMES H. RUDY PROFESSOR OF LAW
DEAR ALUMNI AND FRIENDS:

As we reflect on 2013, we look back with a sense of accomplishment — and look forward with great anticipation, as we welcome a new dean to the IU Maurer School of Law.

Many of you already know that Austen L. Parrish joined us as Dean and James H. Rudy Professor of Law on January 1, 2014. I have known Austen for several years, first as a fellow researcher in shared areas of interest and later as a colleague in administration. He is a gifted administrator and an outstanding scholar, and was a strong and effective leader at Southwestern Law School. His energy, creativity and dedication to improving legal education are exactly what we were looking for in our next dean. Please join me in welcoming him to our School, and in extending my thanks to the very capable search committee who recommended his appointment to Provost Lauren Robel.

As always, the success of the Law School — in the past and going forward — depends on your generous support, and we are very grateful for it. For the year ended June 30, 2013, your gifts to the Law School totaled $3,776,000, compared with $2,953,000, a 28 percent increase. Gifts to the Law School’s annual fund, the Fund for Excellence, grew 13 percent over 2012, from $1,050,000 to $1,384,416, and the average Fund for Excellence gift increased 30 percent over last year.

Your gifts to the Law School support a variety of programs, but the most important of all is the funding that goes to scholarships. Annual tuition is now more than $29,000 per year (nearly $48,000 for out-of-state students), and we are committed to providing scholarship support for as many students as possible. Thanks to your generosity, 93 percent of our students receive some form of scholarship assistance. In the past five years, annual scholarship grants have grown from $6.7 million to more than $34 million this year.

Just as important to our success has been your ongoing investment of time and expertise in helping our students become more proficient professionals. Nearly 1,000 friends of the school volunteered their time in 2013, serving as moot court judges, acting as mentors and speaking to first-year students about career options. You will find a complete listing of all donors and volunteers to the Law School in this issue of ergo.

It has been a privilege to serve as your interim dean during the past two years. This opportunity gave me the pleasure of meeting so many alumni and friends of the school whom I wouldn’t have met otherwise. I am deeply grateful for your support, and look forward to returning to full-time teaching and research under Dean Parrish’s capable leadership.

WITH BEST REGARDS,

HANNAH L. BUXBAUM
INTERIM DEAN AND JOHN E. SCHILLER CHAIR IN LEGAL ETHICS

A CONTINUING TRADITION OF EXCELLENCE

Austen Parrish’s appointment as dean continues a tradition of excellence that dates back to the school’s founding in 1842. Here is a list of his predecessors:

PARRISH NAMED
DEAN OF IU MAURER
SCHOOL OF LAW

On December 16, 2013, IU Bloomington Provost and Executive Vice President Lauren Robel, JD’83, appointed Austen L. Parrish as IU Maurer School of Law dean and James H. Rudy Professor of Law, effective January 1, 2014.

Before his appointment, Parrish served as interim dean from July 2012 until November 2013 at Southwestern Law School, where he was also a professor of law. From 2008 to 2012 he was the school’s vice dean, with responsibility for its overall academic program, including initiatives that brought Southwestern national recognition for curricular reform, professionalism and skills training. A widely published scholar of transnational law, and the use of domestic law and institutions to address global challenges, Parrish joined the Southwestern faculty in 2002.

Parrish was selected as a result of a nationwide search by a committee of faculty members, alumni and student representatives created in the fall of 2012. Hannah L. Buxbaum, the John E. Schiller chair in legal ethics at Indiana Law, served as interim dean from February 2012 until Parrish’s appointment.

“I am delighted to welcome Austen Parrish to Indiana University and to our law school community,” said Robel. “Austen is an exciting leader, and I am confident that he will inspire our faculty, students, staff and alumni to continue raising the national and global profile of the Law School. Austen’s intellect, energy and entrepreneurial spirit fit well with our law school and will strengthen its belief in and dedication to finding innovative ways to prepare students for the challenges of the global legal profession.”

“The Maurer School of Law is an inspiring school with a rich tradition,” Parrish said. “The School has had a remarkable series of leaders, and I feel privileged and humbled by the opportunity to serve as its dean.”

While at Southwestern Law School, Parrish worked closely with Bryant Garth, who was dean from 2005 to 2012 and dean at Indiana Law from 1996 to 1998. As interim dean, Parrish oversaw construction of a $30 million student housing complex, established relationships and collaborations with local and international universities, and led the move from a silent to a public phase of a capital campaign.

Southwestern, a private nonprofit law school established in 1911, is known for its long-standing emphasis on diversity, public service and innovative programs. A pioneer in legal education for women and minorities, the school has strong ties to the Los Angeles business, entertainment and legal communities.

Parrish is an expert in transnational litigation, civil procedure and conflict of laws. He is a leading scholar on issues related to cross-border disputes and has served as an expert witness in cases involving this topic. He is the author of numerous scholarly articles published in leading law reviews, and is co-author of a widely used book on legal writing and a popular guide for new law students. Before entering academia, Parrish practiced complex business litigation at O’Melveny & Myron, a global law firm.

Parrish earned a B.A. in political science and economics from the University of Washington and completed his J.D. degree at Columbia University, where he was a Harlan Fiske Stone Scholar, managing editor of the Columbia Journal of Transnational Law, and a student-editor of the Columbia Journal of European Law. He is a member of the California State Bar.

ersg would like to thank the Indiana Law alumni and friends who served on the search committee. They are Michael E. Flannery, JD’83; Hon. David F. Hamilton; Lisa C. McKinney, JD’92; Hon. Loretta H. Rush, JD’83; and Hon. John D. Tinder, JD’75.

Meet Indiana Law's
New Dean,
Austen L. Parrish

Austen Parrish: Although I’ve lived in Los Angeles for many years, I knew the school by its reputation and the leadership of Lauren Robel and Hannah Buxbaum. They have done a terrific job of setting the school apart from other law schools by preparing students as professionals in every sense of the word. I already knew Hannah because we do research in similar fields, and of course I knew Lauren by her reputation — she is one of the most well-known and highly regarded figures in legal education. When the position first opened, I didn’t apply because I assumed that Hannah would be named dean. After talking with her and becoming convinced that she wasn’t seeking the position, I threw my hat into the ring. The school has an amazing track record of success, and the chance to be part of building on that success was attractive to me.

Ken Turchi: Welcome to the Maurer School of Law! I know that our alumni are eager to hear about you, and your vision and goals for the school. So let’s start with a basic question: What attracted you to this position?

Austen Parrish: What are your initial goals for the school?

AP: I plan to spend the first few months getting to know alumni, students, and leaders from the Indiana bench and bar, as well as faculty and staff, and building consensus around the future of the school. Getting to the next level of success is a collaborative process, and I’m eager to hear what our various constituencies have to say. After that, I will work with the faculty on specific goals and objectives for achieving our collective vision.

In the meantime, I’d like to start building stronger partnerships with undergraduate institutions both in Indiana and across the country, so that we can ensure a steady, highly qualified and diverse pipeline of incoming students. At the other end, I intend to spend considerable time focused on creating career opportunities for our students and developing pathways for their success. I’d like to expand and strengthen our relationships with alumni, and create robust and active alumni networks, particularly in the larger markets where most of our students want to go: Indianapolis, Chicago, New York, Washington, D.C., and Los Angeles.

KT: What do you see as the school’s strengths? Opportunities for improvement?

AP: Although I’ve been on board for only a few days, I’ve been impressed by the Maurer community and the wide support from the university. Over the holidays, I attended a reception for our New York alumni, who were warmly welcoming and enthusiastic about helping our students. We have tremendous resources in our alumni throughout the country, who are extremely talented, and leaders in law, business and public service. I’m excited about meeting them, continuing to build the strength of our alumni network, and working with them to help mentor our students and introduce them to job opportunities whenever possible.

Our school’s faculty is another one of our great strengths. They have a record of distinguished scholarship in a wide array of disciplines, as anyone in the legal academy knows well. That scholarship exposes our students to important perspectives on some of the most pressing legal issues in the world, and helps provide an unparalleled quality of education. Our five research centers are nationally known for their innovative work and the opportunities they offer to our students. And as much as they are dedicated scholars, the faculty are equally dedicated to superb instruction in the classroom, and guiding our students through the complexities of legal education. They are role models and mentors, and represent the very best legal education has to offer. That balance between a focus on teaching, significant research and student support is so key.

And what’s great is the Maurer faculty “gets it.” The faculty’s collegial and cooperative spirit also came through so clearly during my interview, and that’s a wonderful characteristic, one that’s very much welcomed by a new dean. Although I haven’t had many opportunities yet to meet with students, the ones I’ve come to know so far are bright, energetic and focused on the future. I’m looking forward to meeting more of them.

As far as opportunities for improvement are concerned, I think we’ve been too modest. Our alumni’s achievements, our students’ strengths, the accomplishment of our faculty, the tireless dedication of our loyal staff—all of these contribute to a great story about the Law School. There’s a lot about us that’s different from other schools and a lot is happening. The momentum is palpable. We need to create a real buzz about it.
interest, and in the smaller and mid-size firms that form the legal backbone of Indiana, that day after day make a real difference in the lives of everyday people. These other jobs are not talked about in the national press as much, and may not seem as flashy as those on Wall Street, but they are much more important for so many of us. I’m proud of the impact that Maurer graduates have in Indiana and beyond.

But to answer your question more directly, we have some specific initiatives in the works and the Maurer community can expect to hear more in the coming months. We hope to expand the number of large firms interviewing our students, and also create greater opportunities in business and other areas. We have a terrific office of career and professional development with an experienced, newly hired assistant dean who has a lot of energy and creative ideas. He and I will also work closely with our alumni relations office and our alumni throughout the country to help students hone their interviewing and networking skills — and, we hope, to help mentor them. I know of very few people who are truly self-made. It’s time for us to look after the IU-Bloomington family first, and ensure that the school and our more than 11,000 alumni, working together, provide this generation of new graduates the resources, support and guidance they need to succeed.

The reality is it’s tough out there. Our students aren’t naïve; they understand that — they know they need to hustle and that plum positions won’t just be handed to them on a silver platter. Of course, that’s always been true. Even in good times, our students have never walked around with a false sense of entitlement. Our students also don’t blame us for the economic downturn and the challenges in the law firm market that are out of our control. But they want us to fight for them, to do all we can to aggressively open doors, and to have their backs when they need us most. That’s a fight I’m happy to jump in on, and lend my hand as dean to helping our students begin their professional careers in the best way possible. My background and experience should be helpful with this, and my goal is to make an impact quickly.

KT: What’s it like moving to Bloomington from sunny
Southern California in the middle of winter?

AP: I’m a hearty Canadian, so this is nothing (although I must admit, the minus-30 degree temperatures with wind chill last week were a little much!). And Bloomington is a great town with a beautiful campus.
My family won’t be joining me here until after school’s out in the summer, so I will have plenty of time to get to know the campus and the Maurer community, while visiting with alumni and friends of the school
throughout the country.

IN APPRECIATION...

A special thanks goes to the faculty, alumni and friends of the school who served on the dean’s search committee:

One of the Maurer School of Law’s key strategic initiatives is to leverage Indiana University’s great strength as a research institution. Toward that end, the Law School’s five research centers continue to advance the body of knowledge in specific areas of the law, by highlighting the faculty’s efforts while inviting noted scholars from around the world to participate in the discovery and dialogue. Here is an update:

CENTER ON THE GLOBAL LEGAL PROFESSION

IU Maurer School of Law Dean Austen L. Parrish has named Professor Jayanth Krishnan (opposite, top) as director of the IU Maurer School of Law Center on the Global Legal Profession. An active participant in the Center’s growth since its founding in 2009, Krishnan is an expert on lawyers in emerging markets, law and globalization, and legal education, with a special emphasis on how these areas intersect in India.

In his new role, Krishnan will work closely with Indiana University to link the Center’s global scholarship and outreach with other university initiatives. “Jay’s research, fundraising for student scholarships through the Milton Stewart Fellows Program, and his active role in forming partnerships with academic institutions, law firms, and NGOs around the globe make him the ideal person to direct the next phase of the Center’s growth and collaboration,” said Parrish.

Professor William Henderson, the Center’s founding director, will continue to develop domestic programs that complement the Center’s enhanced global emphasis. Henderson noted that Krishnan is “a great institutional colleague, and I am very glad to be handing the reins to him.”

“Following in Bill Henderson’s footsteps is a daunting task,” said Krishnan. “Bill has been a pioneer and instrumental in raising the profile of the Center and the Law School through his groundbreaking work on the legal profession and trends in law firms and the business of lawyering.”

Krishnan joined the Maurer faculty in 2009. He is a Charles L. Whistler Faculty Fellow, director of the school’s India law program, and co-director of the Law School’s Center for Law, Society, and Culture.

CENTER FOR LAW, SOCIETY AND CULTURE

This center recognizes that the role of law in society and culture is best understood through interdisciplinary analysis. Accordingly, its mission is to promote and disseminate a multidisciplinary understanding of law through scholarship, teaching and discussion. The center produces, presents and coordinates research conducted by exceptional scholars in schools and departments across Indiana University on the subject of law and legal problems. Recognizing that a vital democratic culture requires an informed citizenry that is comfortable talking about and thinking about the law, the center inspires collaboration among scholars and serves as a catalyst for curricular innovation and enhancement. The center advocates and invigorates the study of law and its relationship to society and culture among all students at Indiana University. Prof. Jay Krishnan and Ethan Michelson, Associate Professor of Sociology and Law, co-direct the center.

The Center’s spring colloquium illustrates the breadth and depth of its promotion of interdisciplinary scholarship at the Maurer School of Law:

CENTER FOR INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY RESEARCH

In cooperation with Oxford University’s Intellectual Property Research Centre and the Max Planck Institute for Intellectual Property and Competition Law, the center hosted a Design Law Roundtable in Munich, Germany, on November 22-23.

The center is also working on several initiatives relating to intellectual property and the arts, including an interdisciplinary collaboration with Robby Benson, the actor, director and producer who is teaching a film course in IU’s Department of Telecommunications. In addition, the center is collaborating with the Jacobs School of Music and the Indiana Arts Commission in preparation for a major event on intellectual property and the arts in Indianapolis in May 2014. The center received a New Frontiers in the Arts and Humanities New Currents award from IU’s Office of the Vice Provost for Research in support of this initiative.

The Center hosts a series of events at the law school each semester, to which alumni and friends are invited. Indiana CLE credit will be offered at no charge at all events. For more information, visit ip.indiana.edu.

CENTER FOR CONSTITUTIONAL DEMOCRACY

Under the leadership of Prof. David Williams, executive director, and Prof. Susan Williams, director, the Center for Constitutional Democracy continues its work of promoting the rule of law and democratic reform. The recent months have been a period of both fruition and new beginnings. In Burma, the Center’s years of work preparing reform leaders for peace negotiations have yielded positive results: a nationwide ceasefire is just around the corner and political talks should begin in the spring. Similarly, in Liberia, the constitutional review process is now under way, led by the Constitutional Review Committee, with the technical support of the Law Reform Commission, chaired by the Center’s Jallah Barbu. The current president of the country is receptive to the idea of reducing the power of her own office — a truly unusual attitude worldwide. Because the excessive power of the president is one of the roots of Liberia’s instability, threatening the country still, constitutional reform to limit the power of that office points to a much better future.

Meanwhile, new opportunities to help build the rule of law are appearing on the horizon. Abdulaziz Al-Hussan, a human rights lawyer from Saudi Arabia, recently joined the Center as a visiting scholar in Bloomington. He has been developing the outlines of a Saudi Arabia program, which will be initiated when the Williamses visit the Kingdom to deliver lectures and meet reformers. Other country programs are also under development, but the discussions are still in the very early stages.

CENTER FOR APPLIED CYBERSECURITY RESEARCH

The Center for Applied Cybersecurity Research (CACR) has been busier than ever, providing critical expertise to government, private and academic sectors on a wide array of information security issues. With the generous support of President McRobbie and Provost Lauren Robel, former Department of Homeland Security deputy associate general counsel David G. Delaney joined the law school faculty and center staff. In August, CACR Director and C. Ben Dutton Professor of Law Fred H. Cate delivered the keynote address at the 4th Forum on Internet Governance and Law, hosted by the Institute of Internet Governance and Law in Beijing, where he later spoke at the first Academic Symposium of Privacy and Security in Cyberspace.

The Center’s annual cybersecurity summit took place in late October, drawing attendees from all across the Midwest to a half-day event focusing on the causes, effects and validity of Chinese cyber threats. A week later CACR hosted “Developing a Privacy Risk Framework: A Proposal to Accelerate, Integrate and Inform Existing Efforts” in London, the latest in a series of workshops funded by The Privacy Projects. The following week, Cate was in Australia meeting with government officials there and launching a new collaborative cybersecurity project with Australia National University.

Cybersecurity and personal privacy have dominated headlines since the disclosure of classified spying programs by former National Security Agency contractor Edward Snowden, and CACR has been keenly involved in the debate over securing the nation’s cyber infrastructure while preserving civil liberties. During the fall, Cate met with and later submitted written comments to the President’s Review Group on Intelligence and Communications Technologies, which delivered 46 proposed recommendations on limiting NSA spying powers to President Obama in December. He also provided comments to the National Institute of Standards and Technology on a Preliminary Cybersecurity Framework. Cate and CACR Senior Fellow David P. Fidler have been highly sought-after expert commentators on the Snowden disclosures, appearing recently in the Los Angeles Times, New York Times, NPR, Wall Street Journal and Washington Post, among many others.
STEWART PARTY CELEBRATES ARTS

On October 29, Milton Stewart, JD’71, and his wife, Judi, hosted a reception for the Indiana Law community at the Indiana University Art Museum. Longtime patrons of the arts, the Stewarts believe that the rich cultural amenities of Bloomington can play an important role in the IU experience.

“It’s easy to be consumed by the hard work that’s required for a legal education,” Stewart said. “But having knowledge of the wider world is an important part of being a prepared professional. Judi and I are delighted that so many students come to this annual event, and it’s great to see them in a social setting.”

Milton Stewart (J’71), and his wife, Judi, entertained the Indiana Law community at a reception at the Indiana University Art Museum on October 28.

Milton and Judi Stewart (chatting here with Dean Buchanan, right) have a passion for the arts and enjoy introducing students to its wonders.

THREE MAURER ALUMS HONOR SCHOOL WITH GIFTS

Three distinguished Indiana Law alumni have honored their school by establishing scholarship funds.

1. Kathleen Harrold, the wife of the late Bernard Harrold, JD’51, has established a scholarship in his memory. Harrold founded the Chicago law firm of Wildman, Harrold, Allen & Dixon (now known as Edwards Wildman). In 1988, he was inducted into the Academy of Law Alumni Fellows and, in 2013, was inducted into IU’s President’s Circle. In addition to being a skilled antitrust lawyer, Harrold took a real interest in developing young lawyers, which made the establishment of this scholarship a fitting tribute to his memory.

Funds for the Bernard Harrold Law School Scholarship were augmented by additional gifts from Chicago-area lawyers who wanted to honor their former colleague and mentor.

2. Leroy W. Hofmann, JD’58, has established a $100,000 scholarship for Maurer students. Hofmann was a renowned trial attorney in Phoenix, Ariz. for many years and was a tireless community volunteer, serving as a founding member, pro bono lawyer and director of the Arizona Lost Boys Center. He is a recipient of Indiana Law’s Distinguished Service Award. Titled the Leroy and Eleanor Hofmann Scholarship, the award honors Hofmann’s late wife, Eleanor. As a law student, Hofmann received a small Hastings scholarship which helped him and Eleanor put groceries on the table for his (then) two daughters. He was grateful for the support and is pleased to help the next generation of Maurer students with his generous gift.

3. Charles E. Bruess, JD’63, and his wife, Jean E. Bruess, have established a $50,000 scholarship fund in their name. Preference will be given to law students who graduated from a public high school located in Monroe, Owen, Morgan, Greene, Brown or Lawrence County; are Indiana residents; received their undergraduate degree at Indiana University; and have demonstrated economic need. The Bruesses’ son, Steven, is a 1989 alumnus of the Law School and a member of the Intellectual Property Advisory Board.

“These gifts are a true indicator of the incredible generosity of our alumni,” said Brian Kearney, director of major gifts. He added that there are many creative — and often tax-advantaged — ways for funding a gift to the Law School, noting that the Law School’s development office works closely with the Indiana University Foundation’s skilled experts to craft gifts that benefit both the donor and the school. For further information, contact the development office at bkearney@indiana.edu or dregenov@indiana.edu.

LAW AND PSYCHOLOGY SERIES BUILDS ON LAW SCHOOL’S INTERDISCIPLINARY FOCUS

A new series of lectures at Indiana Law is exploring the intersection of these two important disciplines.

Launched in the fall of 2013, the Law and Psychology Speaker Series has two goals, according to Victor D. Quintanilla, associate professor and series convenor: to energize, develop and publicize Indiana University’s newly formed law and psychology network; and to bring together members of the faculty, students and the IU community interested in exploring the intersection of law and psychology.

“Legal scholars and social psychologists now collaborate to examine questions that once seemed unanswerable,” Quintanilla explained. “The relationship between law and psychology is becoming increasingly influential in the study of the U.S. legal system and public policy more generally.”

The series addresses themes such as the impact of law and psychology on legal decision-making; the influence of prejudice, stereotyping and discrimination in legal contexts; procedural justice, legitimacy and alternative dispute resolution; and current directions and advances in the study of the U.S. legal system from the vantage point of law and psychology.

“The presentations in the series complement Indiana Law’s emphasis on interdisciplinary research,” Quintanilla said, noting that the school already supports five research centers on law, society and culture; intellectual property; cyber security; constitutional democracy; and the legal profession.

Jim Sherman, Chancellor’s Professor of Psychological and Brain Sciences, applauded the new series. “This series is a terrific start of something big for law and psychology at IU,” he said.

The 2013-2014 series speakers are:

September 20:  Robert Kurtzban, Associate Professor of Psychology, University of Pennsylvania
March 3: Brenda Major, Professor, Department of Psychological and Brain Sciences, University of California, Santa Barbara
April 17: Jennifer Robbenolt, Professor of Law and Psychology, University of Illinois College of Law

NEW FACULTY AND STAFF JOIN INDIANA LAW

A visiting assistant professor and two key professional staff members joined Indiana Law this fall.

David Delaney is a visiting assistant professor and a senior fellow at the Center for Applied Cybersecurity Research. He comes from the U.S. Department of Homeland Security, where he served from 2004 as an attorney advisor and deputy associate general counsel. He earned a B.S. at the U.S. Military Academy, a J.D. at Boston College Law School, and an M.A. in law and diplomacy at the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy. He is teaching information security law, and will teach a course on data, the law and public policy at the School of Public and Environmental Affairs.

Janet Hein, director of admissions, has more than 20 years’ experience in this field. She most recently served as director and assistant dean of admissions and financial aid at the University of Dayton School of Law, and previously as assistant director of admissions at the University of Minnesota Law School. She will work closely with Frank Motley, assistant dean of admissions, on attracting top-flight students to the Law School.

Kenny Tatum joined the Law School in August as assistant dean in the Office of Career and Professional Development. His experience includes a similar role at Penn State’s Dickinson School of Law. He has also served as a director of lateral recruiting for a major Atlanta law firm and practiced for several years in Atlanta and Milwaukee.

The Law and Psychology Group has several ongoing projects that examine the psychology of legal decision-making. Lawyers are needed either to pilot the surveys or to participate in them. Alumni who are interested in helping by participating in surveys on legal reasoning are invited to send their preferred e-mail address to lawpsych@indiana.edu. Amazon.com gift cards will be raffled as a thank you to participants.

ALUMNI, FRIENDS
GATHER TO CELEBRATE
LEN FROMM’S LIFE

On September 27, some 300 friends and family gathered in Presidents’ Hall of Franklin Hall on the IU Bloomington campus to celebrate the remarkable life of Leonard D. Fromm, longtime associate dean for students and alumni. Fromm retired in 2012 after 33 years of service to the Law School and passed away in February of 2013.

Friends and colleagues remembered Len’s tireless dedication to students as they navigated their way through their difficult first year, dealt with academic ups and downs, and evaluated their career options. During his three decades at Indiana Law, Len interacted with nearly 6,000 students — 60 percent of our alumni — and he stayed in touch with a staggering number of them after graduation. Countless graduates have begun stories of their experience at the Law School with these words: “I wouldn’t have been able to stay in school unless Dean Fromm had...”

Lauren Robel, Bloomington provost and IU executive vice president, spoke of her long association with Len, from her days as a first-year student through her tenure as dean of the Law School and beyond. “Among his many gifts to our school, perhaps the most valuable was Len’s unswerving ability to discern the right thing for the student standing in front of him, and then to assure that the right thing happened,” she recalled. “Sometimes that meant helping a student see an honorable path away from the Law School. Sometimes it meant finding a student who had wandered away, and helping him back. Sometimes, it meant finding the resources for a student who was about to fall away, or being the face of compassionate consequences when a student had taken a misstep. All of this was possible because of the profound level of trust he inspired by his deep integrity. I learned early on that when it came to judgments about a situation with a student, he was always right. Always.”

In addition to Robel, Dean Buxbaum and Prof. Daniel Conkle shared their memories of their longtime friend and colleague. Erik Fromm, Len’s son, delivered remarks on behalf of the family, and then alumni were invited to share their special reminiscences.

LEONARD D. FROMM MEMORIAL FUND ESTABLISHED

A fund in honor of Len Fromm has been established at the IU Foundation. Contributions to this Fund will be used to further what was always Len’s mission: To provide what a student needs, when the student needs it, in furtherance of the student’s success. For more information, visit the website under “Support Indiana Law.”

On the website, you will find more information about this fund, including how to make a contribution.

To make a contribution online, visit www.law.indiana.edu and click on the “Support” tab. From there, select “Memorial Fund.” If you have any questions, please contact the IU Foundation at 812-855-3840 or donate@iu.edu.

When you give to this Fund, you are helping to ensure that our students have the support they need to succeed. Your generosity will make a difference in the lives of our students and will help them to achieve their goals. Thank you for your support.”
ALUMNI, FRIENDS HONOR CRAIG BRADLEY

Friends and family gathered at the Law School on November 15 to honor Craig Bradley, Robert A. Lucas Chair of Law, who passed away unexpectedly in August.

During his 33 years at the Law School, Craig left an indelible impression on thousands of students. When he passed away, we received a flood of letters, e-mails and website postings about his impact as a teacher and scholar. Alumni remember his wry sense of humor, his delight in teaching fundamental principles such as — “Read the Statute!” — and of course his fanciful bow ties.

Provost and IU Bloomington Executive Vice President Lauren Robel praised Bradley for his scholarship. She described him as “an absolutely assured scholar who brought encyclopedic knowledge of criminal procedure to his writing. His stature in the law of the Fourth Amendment and his foresight in opening up comparative criminal procedure as an important field are just two examples of unsurpassed influence. Later in his life,” Robel continued, “I think he really found his métier in his articles for Trial magazine...Pithy, incisive, funny, these little gems got to the heart of newly decided Supreme Court cases, situating them with GPS-like accuracy in the sea of criminal procedure doctrine, and charting with economy and insight the shoals, currents, riptides and sandbars they contained.”

Other friends and family — Professors Alex Tanford, Ryan Scott, and Joe Hoffmann, and Craig’s son, Derek — described Craig’s delightful companionship over brown-bag lunches in the faculty lounge, his kindness and support of new faculty members, and his demanding yet supportive demeanor in the classroom. Among other achievements, Bradley served as a clerk for Justice William Rehnquist and served as a pallbearer at his funeral in 2005.

A video tribute to Craig Bradley, along with the memorial service itself, is available on the Law School’s YouTube page: IUMaurerLaw.
Members of the class of 2013 honored the late Leonard D. Fromm by designating their pledges to the Fund for Excellence to him. The 3L class raised $15,250 in pledges in honor of Fromm, with a participation rate of 47 percent, the second highest in 3L campaign history.

At a campaign wrap-up celebration on May 2, Scott Flanders, JD’82, announced that he would match donations from the class of 2013. “Len Fromm left an indelible legacy, and it’s my pleasure to support this cause and contribute to it,” he said.

All funds contributed by the class of 2013 will be used for a variety of purposes that will continue Len Fromm’s legacy.

The Law School salutes and thanks the committee members and the members of the class of 2013 who made a five-year pledge in Fromm’s honor:

NEW ALUMNI BOARD MEMBERS APPOINTED

Four Indiana Law alumni have been named to the school’s alumni board for a three-year term effective fall 2014:

Matthew T. Furton, JD’95, a partner in the Chicago office of Locke Lord LLP. Furton is a business litigator with an emphasis on the insurance, intellectual property and information technology industries.

Randal J. Kaltenmark, JD’96, a partner in the Indianapolis office of Barnes & Thornburg LLP. He is a tax lawyer representing clients in tax controversies and tax planning, and counsels high-net-worth families and family offices.

Andrew D. Otis, JD’90, a partner in the New York office of Curtis, Mallet-Prevost, Colt & Mosle LLP. Otis represents clients in matters involving environmental laws, regulations and policies as they relate to transactions, litigation and enforcement actions.

Laura M. Walda, JD’05, an associate at Lowndes, Drosdick, Doster, Kantor, & Reed, P.A., Orlando, Fla. She practices in the firm’s commercial real estate and land use areas, focusing on contract and lease negotiation and drafting, real estate acquisitions and related matters. She also has experience in commercial litigation.
THREE ALUMNI HONORED WITH DISTINGUISHED SERVICE AWARDS

Three alumni were presented with Indiana Law’s Distinguished Service Award on Friday, September 27 at a luncheon at the Indiana Memorial Union.

James Brotherson, JD’78, has been a significant contributor to the betterment of his community for more than 30 years. A partner in the South Bend, Ind. office of Faegre Baker Daniels, he has held leadership roles in numerous civic organizations in Elkhart County, where he resides. Brotherson currently serves on the board of directors of the Northern Indiana Center for Hospice and Palliative Care, and recently completed two terms as a director of the Economic Development Corporation of Elkhart County. He also has served as a director of the Greater Elkhart Chamber of Commerce. Brotherson has been president of several other community organizations, including the Samaritan Center of Elkhart, YMCA of Elkhart County and Elkhart Rotary Club. He has been an active participant in the Law School’s growth, serving as a member of the Board of Visitors and president of the Law Alumni Board. Brotherson’s legal practice covers a wide cross-section of companies in Elkhart and South Bend along with other regional businesses. He leads the firm’s recreational vehicle industry practice, representing many of the largest manufacturers and suppliers to that northern Indiana industry.

Susan Carpenter, JD’76, has spent her professional life as a public defender, representing indigent clients in post-conviction actions, belated and direct appeals, at trial and then as the director of the State Public Defender’s Office. She oversaw expansion of the office’s staff from 10 to 44 attorneys as the prison population increased from 7,350 in 1981 to more than 28,000 in 2011. During her distinguished career, she served on the Public Defender Commission and helped draft standards for representation in capital cases which became Criminal Rule 24; managed the program that brought Indiana into compliance with state and federal standards for removing juveniles from adult jails and prisons; and helped create a training and certification program for court interpreters as a member of the Commission on Race and Gender Fairness.

Sandra Leek, JD’79 (posthumously), devoted her career to public service. She began her career at Indiana Legal Services, becoming staff director of its support center and then managing attorney of the Indianapolis office. She was appointed by three governors as executive director of the Indiana Civil Rights Commission in 1992, a position she held until 2005, when she joined Faegre Baker Daniels in Indianapolis, eventually opening her own office. She was named a Sagamore of the Wabash three times; received the Dr. Andrew J. Brown Award for Leadership in Civil Rights twice; and served as president of the Marion County Bar Association. She viewed her profession as a calling, and was a tireless advocate for the less fortunate members of the community. With her untimely passing in 2012, she leaves a legacy of service to the profession.

The Distinguished Service Award was established in 1997 to recognize Indiana Law graduates who have distinguished themselves in service to their communities and/or the IU Maurer School of Law in ways that exceed what might reasonably be expected in the course of their business, professional or civic duties. Through their hard work, passion and accomplishments, these alumni define Indiana Law’s ideals for community service and serve as accomplished role models for our Law School and the greater community.

NOMINATIONS OPEN FOR 2014 DSA

The nominations committee is now accepting nominations for the 2014 Distinguished Service Award. Nominations will be accepted until Friday, April 25, 2014.

For more information, visit law.indiana.edu/alumni/awards/dsa.
On September 28, members of the Classes of 1963, 1988 and 2003 gathered in Bloomington to enjoy the fall weather and visit with old friends at a reception at the Law School. Special thanks to the reunion leaders, who organized the gatherings for their classes: George Buckingham, Joe Franklin and Bill Riggs [1963]; Sherry Fabina-Abney [1988]; and Janet Horvath, Angela Kelver and Jaime Turley-Perz [2003].

On July 27, the Class of 1983 held a 30-year reunion. Members of the Class of ‘83 gather for a group shot.

1. Gary Becker, George Buckingham, John Ulmer and James Moody (Class of ’63)
2. Janet Horvath, Leon Rogers, Jeff Perz and Jaime Turley-Perz (Class of ’03)
3. Christina Commons, Michael Commons, Jessica Polk and Scott Kanner (Class of ’03)
4. Lakshmi Hasanadka, Andrea Trevino and Angela Kelver (Class of ’03)
5. Luann Bolk and David Bolk (Class of ’88)
6. Professor Emeritus Tom Schornhorst and Scott Callahan (Class of ’88)
7. Elizabeth Shuster and Frank Shuster (Class of ’03)
ACTIVE NEW YORK ALUMNI SOCIETY INVITES MEMBERS

Thanks to the leadership of a dynamic group of their peers, Maurer alums in and around New York City can take advantage of the school’s local alumni society. Led by Rachael Clark, JD’05, the Society meets regularly for socializing, networking and mentoring of Maurer students looking for a career in New York. Other committee members are Nicole Cammarota, JD’04; Shane Deaton, JD’04; Simon Malinowski, JD’12; Andrew Otis, JD’00; Amanda Raad, JD’05; Kellen Ressmeyer, JD’07; Darin Siders, JD’01; and Simone Sterling, JD’01.

“New York is a key area for our graduates,” said Dean Parrish during a recent alumni reception sponsored by the Society. “It’s important for us to continue to build the IU network there.”

Recent Maurer grads attest to the benefits of networking with alumni as they look for work and then get settled in the city. “I love my first job at Mayer Brown to Mark Wojciechowski, JD’81, who became a great mentor and friend,” said Shane Deaton, JD’04. I used the leveraged finance training I received at Mayer Brown, plus my undergrad business degree from Kelley, to move into the business world at Goldman Sachs & Co., where I’m now an associate.”

Simon Malinowski, JD’12, agreed. “The Maurer community was the best part of going to law school in Bloomington,” he said. “Throughout my time in Bloomington, and since I have had the opportunity to become part of our law school’s New York Alumni Society, there is sense of mutual investment in the community’s future success (both as a group and individually) that I think is unique to our law school.”

Alumni who are interested in becoming part of the New York Alumni Society can do so by contacting:

→ Rachael Clark (rachaelnc Clark@gmail.com) or → Andrea Havill, assistant dean for alumni relations, (lawalum@indiana.edu).

COMING EVENTS

Mark your calendars and plan to join former Interim Dean Hannah Buxbaum as she introduces Dean Austen Parrish at an alumni reception. This will be a great time to hear the latest news about the school and catch up with classmates and friends.

→ Chicago: Wednesday, February 12, 6:00-8:00 p.m., Chicago Club
→ Indianapolis: Monday, February 17, 6:00-8:00 p.m., Skyline Club
→ Washington, D.C.: Tuesday, March 11, 6:00-8:00 p.m. Hosted by Jones Day
→ Minneapolis/St. Paul: May 2014

Look for an invitation with specifics, or check law.indiana.edu/alumni for further details.

ACADEMY OF LAW ALUMNI FELLOWS NAMED

Four alumni will be inducted into the Academy of Law Alumni Fellows on April 11, 2014 at a ceremony beginning at 6:00 p.m. in the Tudor Room of the Indiana Memorial Union. The highest honor the Law School can bestow, this award is given to graduates who have distinguished themselves in their chosen fields, and who continue to enhance the national reputation of the school.

This year’s laureates are:

→ Lowell E. Baier, LL.B’64
→ Sara Yang Bosco, JD’83
→ Donald P. Dorfman, JD’57
→ Patricia A. McNagny, JD’51

Welcome at last, Dean Austen Parrish!

On behalf of our great alumni, we welcome you and look forward to your leading us into the next era of top national public legal education at the IU Maurer School of Law. I was thankful for the chance to interview Dean Parrish early in the search process. His energy, creativity and passion came through clearly, complementing his legal education, administrative experience, past private practice, and academic teaching and publishing record. I believe we can count on Dean Parrish boldly moving our school forward at a time when global ties, innovation and greater student assistance are essential to thrive.

Supporting this next important phase of the Law School’s life necessitates more than ever your involvement as alumni in the school to support Dean Parrish, our students and faculty. The school needs you to hire our students; mentor, support and network with them in both established and new legal markets; attend events both in and outside of Bloomington; and volunteer to help with the annual fund, clinics, moot court, mock interviews, and any other way that helps strengthen and advance the school’s mission and our students’ success in finding careers that are right for them. The Alumni Board actively explores and pursues interesting and valuable ways to involve our alumni in the life of the school. If there are ways you would like to be involved that we are not offering, please let me know. I’d love to hear from you.

Finally, I want to especially thank Interim Dean Hannah Buxbaum for the thankless task of so well serving as our interim dean for the past two years. We could not have asked for a better steward to steadily guide the school during this time of change and challenge, not to mention an extended search process! She has kept the Law School strong and focused, and well prepared for handing off to Dean Parrish to guide and nurture in a new era. Thank you so much, Hannah!

ANDREW B. BUCHER, JD’89
PRESIDENT, IU MAURER SCHOOL OF LAW ALUMNI BOARD

VERY TRULY YOURS,
ABOUT THE HONOR ROLL OF DONORS

JULY 1, 2012–JUNE 30, 2013

Through annual gifts from donors, the Indiana University Maurer School of Law builds and sustains resources that support scholarships, law journals, trial advocacy programs, the Law Library, faculty development and many other initiatives.

The Fund for Excellence giving societies are:

- $30,000 and above:
  Dean’s Circle Benefactors
- $5,000 to $30,000:
  Dean’s Circle Visionaries
- $1,000 to $5,000:
  Dean’s Circle Directors
- $250 to $999:
  Partners
- Up to $249:
  Associates

The 2012–2013 Honor Roll of Donors reflects gifts from July 1, 2012 through June 30, 2013. Unrestricted gifts and annual gifts to student organizations, scholarships and the Law Library are recognized as contributions to the Fund for Excellence. An asterisk indicates that the donor is deceased.

Every effort has been made to avoid errors. Please accept our apology if you have been listed incorrectly or omitted.

Please report corrections to:

HONOR ROLL PARTNERS IN EXCELLENCE

The Partners in Excellence enable the IU Maurer School of Law to plan for the future of mission-critical programs by pledging their sustained support to the School in the amount of $2.500 per year or more for five years. The support of our Partners in Excellence makes possible the services and programs that distinguish Maurer School of Law from its peers.

The Law School deeply appreciates the investment of this elite group of donors.

GIVING BY CLASS HONOR ROLL

The Fund for Excellence 2012–2013 campaign raised $1,184,416, a 13 percent increase over last year. Special recognition goes to Class Agents Robert P. Kassing, JD’64, and James Fitzpatrick, JD’59, who achieved alumni participation rates of 37 and 36 percent this year. Larry R. Fisher, JD’68, raised the highest amount of any class ($109,000), and Joel Rosenblum, JD’54, raised the second-highest amount ($102,000). Thank you to all class agents and alumni for their support of and dedication to our law school.

In 2013, more than 1,000 alumni and friends volunteered their time in support of Indiana Law’s initiatives in order to recognize them.
In November 2009, the Law School honored John F. (“Jack”) Kimberling, JD ’50, for his generosity and vision by creating the Kimberling Society: a special group of donors who have made arrangements to support the Law School in their estate planning. Kimberling passed away in 2013.

Membership in the Kimberling Society is open to all who make or have made a planned or deferred gift commitment to the Law School. This is accomplished by naming the IU Maurer School of Law as a beneficiary through a bequest in a will, charitable remainder unit trust or annuity trust, pooled income fund, charitable gift annuity, life insurance, retirement plan, or other life-income arrangements. Members in the Kimberling Society are automatically included in the IU Foundation’s planned giving society, the Arborus Society.

WE ARE PLEASED TO RECOGNIZE AND THANK THE MEMBERS OF THE KIMBERLING SOCIETY:

*Deceased
Friends and family of John F. “Jack” Kimberling, JD’50, gathered at the IU Foundation on October 31 to pay tribute to this distinguished and beloved alumnus, who died in January 2013.

IU Foundation President Emeritus Curtis R. Simic remembered his 25-year affiliation with Kimberling, who, despite a longtime career as a trial lawyer in Los Angeles, never lost touch with his Hoosier roots. “Jack emerged as one of those go-to people on the Foundation board,” he recalled. “He helped shape and then led the campaign for endowed chairs and professorships that moved IU from last to first in the Big Ten.”

Semic pointed to Kimberling’s leadership of the Law School’s last capital campaign as having a major impact on the school’s success, adding that he was a helpful advisor to four generations of colleagues and family members. “Jack was an activist for just treatment for everyone, in every aspect of their lives,” he said.

IU Executive Vice President and Bloomington Provost Lauren Robel remembered Kimberling as “iconoclastic, individualistic . . . and adventurous. He appreciated beauty. He had a refined and expansive aesthetic sensibility. He was generous and philanthropic, and he set everyone’s sights high.” She added that his leadership of the Kimberling Society contributed to its success, with more than 200 members.

The intellectual property law firm founded by Julia Church Dierker, JD’88, Dierker and Associates, PC, was featured in the Michigan Women Business Leaders promotional section in the June 10, 2013 issue of Forbes magazine.

Sherry Fabina-Abney, JD’88, was recently featured in The Indiana Lawyer on her and her husband’s decision to raise their children in a rural setting. Years ago, Fabina-Abney would have identified herself as an urban resident through and through, but today her answer would be quite different. Fabina-Abney, an attorney with the healthcare group at Ice Miller LLP in Indianapolis, moved her life and her identity to an 18-acre farm in Johnson County. It was Fabina-Abney’s husband who pushed for moving beyond the suburbs when the couple contemplated setting down roots to start a family. The rural environment has had a momentous impact on Fabina-Abney’s children, leading them to community involvement and leadership as well as career opportunities they likely would not have considered if raised elsewhere. Oldest daughter Angela is a junior at Purdue University studying agribusiness and operating her own beef business. Middle daughter Alifie, a recent high school graduate, is state FFA president and will spend the year advocating for agricultural issues. Son Dougie is involved in 4-H and raises and shows goats.

Lewis N. Mullin, LLB’40, died Thursday, June 20, 2013 at the Mulberry Health and Retirement Community. He was 96. He was born Feb. 24, 1917, the son of Roscoe C. and Pearl Sterrett Mullin. He married Hazel Kate Stockham Oct. 26, 1940, in Peru. His only sibling, Opal Ringer, died in 2001.

Mullin attended school at Burrows and Rockfield, graduating in 1934. He received a scholarship paying twice a year $67.50 for his tuition to Indiana University lasting all the six years needed to obtain a law degree in 1940. Early at IU he helped build a log cabin and recycle crane wood as firewood in exchange for room and board. Later, a roommate, Ed Craft, found him employment in the Union Building waiting tables, checking coats and cleaning. At IU he served as a student editor of the Law Journal and earned membership in the Phi Beta Kappa academic honorary. It was at IU that Lewis met Hazel.

Mullin was Carroll County prosecutor for eight years, public defender for 20 years, county attorney for five years, REMC attorney for 44 years, Area Planning Commission advisor for 20 years and Rock Creek Cass-Carroll County Conservancy District attorney for 50 years. In 2006 he received the Samuel Milroy Award from the Delphi Chamber of Commerce. Before settling back in Carroll County, Lewis worked as an attorney for the U.S. Department of Agriculture in Washington, D.C., from 1940 to 1943. He also served three years in the U.S. Army in the southwest Pacific, including New Guinea, Australia and then in Manila in the office of Adjutant General in General Douglas MacArthur’s headquarters and later in his headquarters in Tokyo.

After his discharge from the army, Mullin returned to work in the Department of Agriculture for one more year before heading his father’s call to bring his family to his home county to farm and practice law. His first office was above what was once Ory’s Drug Store in Delphi. In 1960, he moved his office to the corner of Market and Monroe into a big brick house he inherited from his grandmother, Jenny Dickenson. Lewis was a member of the Camden American Legion, Camden Lions Club, Delphi Rotary Club, State and American Bar Associations, and Burrows Presbyterian Church. In 1986 he refurbished the one-room Martin School, now on the National Register of Historic Places.

Judge Alfred Moellerling, LLB’53, died Sunday, June 2, 2013 at Parkview Regional Medical Center in Fort Wayne, Ind. He was 86. Moellerling’s larger-than-life character — and voice — brought to Allen County a sense of unwavering fairness in the courtroom, bold explication of the law and intolerance for ill-prepared attorneys. A graduate of South Side High School, Moellerling joined the military near the end of World War II. He was active in local Democratic politics, serving as past president of the Fourth District Young Democrats and as a regional director of that organization. Moellerling served in Allen Superior Court until 1992, retiring at 65, one year shy of completing his four-year term on the bench. In December 1995, he was given the Sagamore of the Wabash Award, Indiana’s highest honor for individuals’ civic duty. In 1993, he was awarded the LEO — Law Enforcement Oscar — from the Patrolmen’s Benevolent Association. Among those surviving are his wife, Carol, a daughter, and a son.

Frank V. Roman, LLB’53, passed away June 18, 2013. He was 88. He was a multi-sport athlete in school and graduated from Emerson High School, Class of 1943. He served in the U.S. Army in the 83rd Infantry Division of the 5th Army during WWII as a forward scout for Tank Destroyers, and fought in the Battle of the Bulge. Frank graduated from Wabash College in 1950 where he played baseball, basketball and football. He was named Little All American in football and inducted into Wabash’s Athletic Hall of Fame. His record for the longest punt return of 93 remained unbroken until 2005. In 1953 he married former Emerson schoolmate, Shirley Groves. He practiced law for several years before joining the Trust Department of Gary National Bank. He was active in many civic and professional activities. He served as president of the Gary Bar Association, member of the Gary Police Civil Service Commission and chairman of the Mayor’s Safety Commission. He was also president of the local Lions Club, served on the Miller Citizens’ Corporation, Marquette Park United Methodist Church Board of Trustees, and as legal advisor to the Salvation Army. He also chaired the Gary Old Timers’ banquet for many years. Roman is survived by his wife, Shirley; son, Frank Roman, Jr.; daughter, Meg Roman; and grandchildren, Leah and Shelby.

Thomas L. Stevens, JIF’55, of Naples, Fla., formerly of Evanston and Wilmottte, Ill., died September 14, 2013. He was the beloved husband of Nancy (Ferris) Stevens, loving father of Clayton (Becky) Stevens; cherished grandfather of Gavin and Lauren Stevens, dear brother of the late Wayne (Claire) Stevens; and brother-in-law of Rev. Richard (Kathy) Ferris. Stevens was a veteran of the U.S. Navy and an attorney with Lord Bessell & Brook in Chicago for many years.

Thomas J. O’Connor, LLB’53, age 82, of Brookville, Ind., died Saturday, October 19, 2013 at Christ Hospital in Cincinnati, Ohio. Born July 4, 1931 in Harvey, Ill., he was the son of the late Walter and Edna (Sensenac) O’Connor. He was a veteran of the United States Navy. On August 17, 1957 he was united in marriage to the former Joann Zolkin, who survives. The late Virgil McCarty gave O’Connor his start in practicing law in the Brookville area in 1957, and he continued practicing until his retirement in January 2003.

O’Connor was a member of St. Michael’s Catholic Church in Brookville, a Fourth Degree member of the Knights of Columbus Council #1020 of Brookville, and a Lifetime Member of the Bernard Hurst Post #47 of the American Legion in Brookville. Throughout his life he was an active member of the community, having served on various boards and organizations. Most notably, he was president of the Whitewater Valley Flood Control Association, which was responsible for securing the federal funding for the construction of the Brookville Lake Flood Control Project. O’Connor was an active conservationist having established the Seven Oaks Classified Forest in Franklin County. In his leisure time he enjoyed camping, spending time with his family and traveling. He and Joann had visited most of the presidential birthplaces and burial sites throughout the United States.

Besides Joann, his wife of over 56 years, survivors include five children, Patricia (Kevin) Hull of Lincoln, N. C.; Brian (Martha) O’Connor of Castle Rock, Colo.; Theresa (Mark) Kettle of New Kent, Va.; Kara Oaldon of Pendleton, Ind.; and Kyle (Naomi) O’Connor of Brookville, Ind.; nine grandchildren; two sisters, Ann Raja of Greenwood, Ind. and Myra O’Connor of Hickory, N.C.; a brother, Barry (Cathy) O’Connor of Anderson, Ind.; a sister-in-law, Nancy O’Connor of Oceola, Ind.; and nieces and nephews. In addition to his parents, he was preceded in death by a son-in-law, Bruce Oaldon; a brother, Robert O’Connor; a sister-in-law, Vickie O’Connor; and a brother-in-law, Vince Raja.

Memorial contributions may be directed to the Franklin County Community Foundation for a scholarship which will be established in his memory; the Brookville Public Library or the American Cancer Society for myelodysplastic syndrome research.

Jonathan Eric Stern, JIF’04, age 27, of Chicago, formerly of Indianapolis, Ind.; beloved husband and best friend for 11 years of Sarah Fischer, JIF’04, and remarkable father of three-year-old Savannah, passed away on September 11, 2013 after a short but hard-fought battle with cancer.

Following graduation, Stern and his wife moved to Chicago to begin practicing law, where he went on to practice corporate finance and securities law at top Chicago firms, eventually becoming a partner at Bryan Cave LLP. He also was the former chair for the Chicago Bar Association Securities Law Committee and was a frequent speaker on securities law topics. Most recently, Stern was the president of his investment bank, Connors Capital, and an attorney at Kuhnaskis, Pylutra, Thorpe & Rotunno, P.C. where he was the lead corporate and securities attorney specializing in corporate finance, securities, fund formation, broker-dealer and investment adviser compliance.

His law firm said it best: “Jon was in the prime of his career, and he leaves a legacy of professional achievement as a lawyer.” Contributions may be made to the Savannah Stern Education Fund, checks made payable to “Savannah Stern, UTMA,” Merrill Lynch, attn.
