This Week in the Law School

Today is the day we've been waiting for all year. Who can follow Prof. Morrison's stunning performance last year? Or Prof. Quintanilla's spirited dancing to that one Sara Bareilles song? This year's Singing for Summer Salaries contenders are a veritable who's who of the music world. Will Prof. Scott bring the house down as he has in years past? Will Prof. Conkle lead us in the Ohio State fight song? Will Prof. Fuentes-Rohwer wear actual shoes? These questions and more will be answered today at noon.

We'll host many visitors this week, including Leti Volpp, who will deliver the Ralph F. Fuchs Lecture Wednesday. Our Alumni Board is here Friday, we'll pay tribute to Prof. Doug Boshkoff that afternoon, and we'll welcome in members of the class of 2019 on Saturday.

Singing for Summer Salaries

Come participate in Singing for Summer Salaries, PILF's longstanding tradition. Which professors will make it to the Final Four? Who will perform an original song? A classic rock song? A Spanish ballad? Bid against students and professors to make one of these professors sing at the end of the hour. Let the madness ensue: purchase a lunch ticket or auction package, participate in professor-sponsored challenges, or donate cash. All proceeds from this event go toward PILF's summer scholarships for students working in unpaid public interest legal work. This year's participating professors and staff are: Dan Conkle, Luis Fuentes-Rohwer, Charles Geyh, Seth Lahn, Leandra Lederman, Catherine Matthews, Aviva Orenstein, Ryan Scott, Earl Singleton, and Carwina Weng. Moot Court Room, noon.

Ralph F. Fuchs Lecture: Refugees Welcome?

Berkeley Law Prof. Leti Volpp will examine a road sign and its transatlantic migration. Created by Caltrans in 1990 as a highway safety sign and posted along the I-5 in Southern California, the symbol of immigrants running re-emerged under the banner of "Refugees Welcome" in football stadiums in Germany in late August 2015. Prof. Volpp will map the meanings and movement of this particular sign. Tracing this image's circulation and its transformations illuminates how immigration and refugee policy in both the United States and Germany has been shaped by dramatic events in recent months. Moot Court Room, noon.

Indiana's 2016 Draconian Abortion Restrictions: What Do They Mean and What Can We Do?

On March 24, Indiana Gov. Mike Pence signed into law a wide range of new restrictions: bans on abortions performed for a range of specified reasons, TRAP restrictions that seek to shut down clinics, the most stringent fetal remains restrictions in the country, and more. Piled on top of existing obstacles, this law will worsen Indiana's already-dismal status as one of the states most hostile to women's reproductive health. Combined with recent assaults on LGBTQ liberty and equality, it's a very sorry tale for our state and for women and families. Join our panel to discuss how we can take back our Hoosier State! The panelists will include Prof. Dawn Johnsen, Kate Michelman (senior advisor to Women's Health Project; president (1985-2004) NARAL Pro-Choice America), Wanda Savala (community engagement coordinator for Planned Parenthood of Indiana and Kentucky), moderated by Morgan Mohr (director, Generation Action IU). Co-sponsored by Generation Action IU, IU College Democrats, IU Feminist Student Association, and the American Constitution Society, Feminist Law Forum, and Law Students for Reproductive Justice. Room 122, 7 p.m.

Thursday, March 31

Discussion facilitated by Prof. Dawn Johnsen, who served as Ms. Michelman’s legal director at NARAL from 1988-1993, and earlier at the ACLU Reproductive Freedom Project. RSVP requested (but not required) to help plan how much lunch to order (djohnsen@indiana.edu). (You are encouraged to attend even if you did not RSVP.) Co-sponsored by the American Constitution Society, Feminist Law Forum, Law Students for Reproductive Justice, and the IU Feminist Student Association. Faculty Lounge, 1 p.m.

The Historicity of Jesus of Nazareth

1L Robert Rowlett will be hosting the second talk in his series of discussion nights. The aim of these talks is to expose believers and nonbelievers alike to the tremendous amount of historical evidence for both the person of Jesus Christ and the Resurrection. Was Jesus delusional? Was Jesus a fraud? Aren't the gospels full of contradictions and subsequent additions and myths? All of these questions and many more will be covered in this series. Come prepared with questions and curiosity as we walk through the work of such renowned authors as Lee Strobal, JD; William Lane Craig, PhD; Ravi Zacharias; and more. This event is completely open to the public, students, nonstudents, and those of any religious background. Room 122, 7:30 p.m.

New Library Online Resources Page

The Jerome Hall Law Library has created a new online resources page using LibGuides. This new page is linked to the website, so access will be the same as before, however the new page has a different look from the website. You can access this page from the "Quick Links" or "Research Tools" on the Law Library section of the website, and the direct link is: http://law.indiana.libguides.com/onlineresources/frequentlyused.

March Against Hunger

Join SBA and BLSA as we March Against Hunger. We will be in the lobby at lunch for the month of March collecting monetary donations for the Hoosier Hills Food Bank. Like Talk Turkey to Me, each $1 you donate will get you a "shoe" to decorate and hang on the bulletin board outside of the SBA and BLSA offices. For all you competitive spirits out there (and let's be honest it's all of you), there is an Indiana state-wide competition among law schools for who can raise the most donations for each school's food bank. Indiana Law is officially a top-25 law school, but let's be number one in philanthropy.
Student Positions for 2016-17 Open

Several administrative offices in the law school are taking applications for positions for 2016-17. The following positions will be posted on CareerNet: admissions fellows, career services fellow, international peer group assistants, practice group advisors, student affairs fellows, and teaching assistantships in the Graduate Legal Studies Program. Please note there are different deadlines for the positions with most of the deadlines falling during this week.
