PROCEEDINGS OF MID-WINTER MEETING OF THE INDIANA STATE BAR ASSOCIATION

The mid-winter meeting of the Indiana State Bar Association was held at the Claypool Hotel, Indianapolis, Indiana, February 5, 1938.

The meeting was called to order at ten o'clock A. M. by President Louden L. Bomberger.

Welcome and Response

No Indiana State Bar meeting is properly opened without addresses of welcome and response. The mid-winter meeting this year excelled all its predecessors in this respect—being favored by two addresses of welcome and two responses.

Mr. Thomas D. Stevenson, President of the Indianapolis Bar Association, and Mr. Floyd W. Burns, President of the Indianapolis Lawyers' Association, welcomed the visiting lawyers and extended greetings from the Indianapolis lawyers, old and young.

Mr. Clarence R. McNabb of Ft. Wayne and Mr. Edwin C. Henning of Evansville made suitable responses on behalf of the lawyers of Northern and Southern Indiana, respectively.

Report of Committee on American Citizenship

Judge Roscoe C. O'Byrne, Chairman of the Committee, made the following report:

Your Committee on American Citizenship reports that when it held its first meeting August 18, 1937, it found itself confronted, on the one hand with a definite and vigorous mandate from the President of this Association to write a prompt record of action and achievement, and on the other hand with a complete absence of policy, program or heritage from its predecessor. No report of the preceding Committee on American Citizenship was made to this Association at its annual summer meeting in 1937, and hence of necessity your present Committee "started from scratch."

Under such circumstances a survey disclosed a situation which demanded prompt and patriotic action, and at the same time offered an opportunity for
