MESSAGE FROM THE SECRETARY

The Indiana State Bar Association is very anxious to work in closer cooperation with the local and district bar associations of Indiana. To this end President Gause and your Secretary intend to visit during the year as many of these associations as possible.

For the last several years the Association has held, in connection with the midwinter meeting, a conference of local and district bar representatives. These meetings have been well attended and highly successful and will be continued, but the long interval between such gatherings is an obstacle to the intimate relationship that is desired. By attending the weekly or monthly meetings of the various organizations it is believed that a more valuable and permanent contact can be maintained.

Your President and Secretary, therefore, are openly soliciting invitations to attend these local bar meetings and the invitations need be no more formal than our visits will be. In fact, no invitation at all will be necessary if the officers of local and district associations will simply notify this office of the date and place of their regular meetings. While a definite schedule cannot be arranged or adhered to we will, during the course of the year, get around to all of the associations indicating they will not object to the intrusion.

In conclusion, the columns of the Indiana Law Journal are always open to the activities of these various associations and news items in this field are very much appreciated.

THOMAS C. BATCHELOR, Secretary.
